Dear Representative,

The newest version of the Oak Flat land exchange, HR 687, will be debated by the US House of Representatives, Natural Resources Committee on May 15th at 10:00.

We, the undersigned organizations representing thousands of Americans ask you to oppose this bill. Groups and organizations from all walks of life representing a myriad of constituencies oppose the Oak Flat land exchange. Opposition to the land exchange cuts across the spectrum in many ways and Oak Flat is held dear for many reasons. Go to <http://www.azminingreform.org/content/resolutions-opposing-hr-687-s-339> for a comprehensive list of organizations and governing bodies opposing the legislation.

This is the 12th version of the land exchange. The previous 11 versions of the land exchange have failed for a very good reason – the American people have spoken loudly that this piece of special interest legislation is not in the best interests of our Nation. We urge you to vote no on HR 687.

Rio Tinto and BHP - Billiton have created a subsidiary that is proposing to mine an ore body more than 7,000 feet below the surface east of Superior, Arizona. As a first step, Rio Tinto asked Representatives Gosar and Kirkpatrick to introduce HR 687 that would end an executive order banning mining from Oak Flat Campground and privatize more than 2,400 acres of public land. The bill asks Congress to make a determination that the land exchange is in the best interest of the United States without the benefit of the normal process of permitting mines on public land which would require a mining plan of operations to be prepared. It bypasses the normal process of permitting mines on public lands that require the US Forest Service to conduct studies looking at a full range of impacts and alternatives required by the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA).

HR 687 is special interest legislation that would trade away the Oak Flat Campground and surrounding federal lands to foreign mining companies. Oak Flat is sacred to Native Americans and is critical for cultural and recreational activities.

- HR 687 is only piece of legislation in Congress that would turn over a Native American sacred site on federal lands to foreign mining companies.
- HR 687 would mandate the loss of the largest amount of federal lands ever for recreational rock climbing resulting in financial ruin for small businesses based on the climbing industry.
- HR 687 would result in massive dewatering of the riparian area and the loss of habitat critical to rare and endangered plants and animals.

Not only have the previous 11 versions of the bill failed, there are many new reasons that the land exchange is particularly inappropriate at this time.

- While Rio Tinto promised the United States Senate in February of 2012 that a mining plan of operations would be submitted to the US Forest Service by June of 2012, no document has yet been produced. In fact, it would be impossible for Rio Tinto to produce a valid mining plan of operations at this time, as the company has not even completed basic exploratory work or other critical studies. The US Congress is being asked to privatize public land that is far more valuable for non-mining uses without the benefit of being able to look at a plan that answers basic questions needed to show that the health and welfare of the public and the environment would be protected. Further, on April 25th at a public meeting, Rio Tinto admitted that it does not even know where it would be able to dump 1.6 billion tons of toxic mine waste and that a mining plan could not be written until a suitable dump site is found.
- The town Council of Superior passed a unanimous resolution on March 13 opposing HR 687 (attached) and has terminated a mutual benefits agreement with Rio Tinto citing that the agreement and the bill protects the company, but not the town.
- The town of Queen Valley's Homeowners Association and Golf association oppose a mine at Oak Flat because it would dewater the town and place environmentally hazardous tailings at the gateway to the town.

The bill is opposed by a wide coalition of Native American Tribes, religious organizations, recreational organizations, historic preservation organizations, and conservation groups.

Please help protect Oak Flat and the surrounding area by opposing any attempts to pass HR 687 this Congress.

Thank you,
